

Mr. M.K. Venu

Managing Editor, Financial Express

MK Venu is Managing Editor and heads a team of editorial writers that articulate the views of the Financial Express on all important economic and political issues. Previously, he was Chief Editor, News with The Economic Times and has worked with The Economic Times in varying capacities over the past 12 years. Prior to The Economic Times, he worked for other prestigious national newspapers such as Hindustan Times and other publications of the Times of India Group and has completed 25 years in journalism. He has written extensively on India's dynamic role at the WTO and its quest to become part of regional trade blocs such as ASEAN and the East Asian Summit, BRIC and so on. He has been a participant at workshops designed by the WTO headquarters at Geneva and appears as a regular contributor on economic policy related discussions on national television channels.

MK Venu had been invited by the United States government on a special visitors programme in 2000 to understand the reforms in the infrastructure utilities in that country. He has been on a special programme to the European Commission to study how the European Union works. He was a part of a very select Indian delegation to China in 2005 to discuss larger energy cooperation between the two most populous countries.
